

CARING TOGETHER.

Are you aware of the health benefits the lifestyle in a retirement community can offer? Or that many retirement residences can safely provide for seniors' health needs before the need for long term care?

CHARTWELL
retirement residences

Today's retirement residences offer a lifestyle that promotes independence, an active social life and the right level of support. Retirement communities are safe, contemporary settings that feel like home, and offer support and care that caters to a wide variety of needs and preferences. From conveniences like meals, housekeeping, leisure opportunities and 24-hour emergency response, to medication supervision and administration, to full assisted living and memory care support, the lifestyle in a Chartwell residence is designed to support seniors' unique health and wellness needs for a happier, healthier and more fulfilling retirement.

To see how a retirement living lifestyle may positively impact your patients' lives, we can provide the following complimentary information services:

- Presentations
- One-on-one and group consultations
- Lunch and Learns
- Industry education
